

M'ADOO APPEALS TO ARMY AT HOME

"Pershing Needs Locomotives to Get to Berlin," He Tells Chicago Audience.

ALL MUST TAKE BONDS

Reminds People That Wilson
Bought $20,000 on Instalment Plan.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, addressed an appeal to the rich and poor of the nation alike to make a supreme effort to bring Liberty Loan subscriptions to the required $6,000,000,000 level in a speech before more than 5,000 persons at a mass meeting here to-night.

"If our home army fails to put the Fourth Liberty Loan over," he declared, "it will contradict everything our soldiers are doing. It will be a new incentive to Germany to keep on fighting and it will be a confession in America of humiliating and disastrous failure. Our soldiers are winning victories with their blood and heroism. Shall we at home turn their victories into defeats? No. Pershing has the Germans on the run and we are going to lash the backs of the fleeing enemy until the victory is complete."

"Pershing needs locomotives and rails to follow up our victories, and a part of the money of the Fourth Liberty Loan will be used to send them to him. It takes American locomotives now to keep up with the fleeing Germans. We may as well send our American soldiers in first class trains to Berlin instead of letting them march that long distance on foot."

Appeals to Family Buyers.

"The fact that only one week remains to subscribe the Fourth Liberty Loan and that we are still short $2,500,000,000 makes it necessary for us to consider some of the specific things that must be done to win success. Many families, for instance, think they have done their full duty when the head of the family subscribes for bonds, but the head of the family has not done his full duty unless he has bought all of the bonds he can pay for immediately and in the near future."

"A word particularly to the farmers: They did splendid work in the Third Liberty Loan, but they must do more with the Fourth Liberty Loan. Farmers have not yet sold their crops and may not have ready money to pay for bonds immediately. But they are selling their crops right along and will soon have the money to invest in Liberty bonds. Each and every farmer in the United States should subscribe for Liberty bonds now and pay for them when he has sold his crops."

"What I have said about the duty of farmers to buy on the installment plan applies to every class of our people, rich and poor and of moderate means alike. Why should the well to do and rich men and corporations hesitate to buy bonds on the installment plan if they have not the ready cash, when people of small means are doing so?"

"The same thing may be said of estates and trust funds generally. Let every trustee of such funds awaken to his duty and promptly invest the funds under his control in the bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan.

"When the Third Liberty Loan was offered the Germans had pushed their lines in a great circle westward, so that they were within shelling distance of the city of Paris. Never were the liberties of the world in such peril as at that time. But as soon as we transformed those Liberty bonds into fighting Americans on the front and into the munitions and supplies those fighting men needed, we began to make dents in the German circle, and now we are pushing it eastward toward Berlin, instead of the Germans pushing it westward toward Paris."

"All America recognizes the patriotic duty of supporting our soldiers in the field and of helping them fight until a conclusive victory is won; but patriotism is of little value if it is professed only with the lips and is not backed up by actual deeds. We must do the necessary things at home just as our soldiers must do the necessary things on the battlefield. They cannot fight, they cannot win, unless the great home army provides the means for fighting."

"A few days ago I took the subscription of the President of the United States for $20,000 of Liberty bonds on the installment plan. The President, the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, does not feel demeaned by buying Liberty bonds on the installment plan. He knows the importance of doing it, and he knows that this war cannot be financed unless the people use their credit as well as their savings. The President is going to pay for his Liberty bonds out of his salary as it comes to him monthly, and every other man and woman and every corporation in the United States should buy all the Liberty bonds they can just as the President has done and pay for them out of their salaries or their incomes on the installment plan."

McAdoo Appeals to Governors.

Mr. McAdoo telegraphed the following appeal to the Governor of every State in the Union to-night:

"One week of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign remains and three and a half billion dollars have yet to be raised. The American people can provide this money if they are fully aroused to the imperative necessity of doing so. With the six billion dollars required for the Fourth Liberty Loan the great victories of our soldiers in France will be negated. The home army must not turn the victories of the field army into defeats. The home army must render valueless the bloody sacrifices of our heroes. The home army must, on the other hand, transform the victories of the field army into the final step."

Women Work in Brick Plant.

MILTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Forced to take the step by the acute labor shortage, the Milton Brick Manufacturing Company, whose entire output is being taken by the United States Government, announced that it would employ women in the future. It is believed to be the first brick plant in the country to take the step.

REVENUE AND RUM DISTURB CONGRESS

Move to Reduce Whiskey Tax
Regarded as Democratic Political Trick.

HALTS UNTIL ELECTION

War Time Prohibition Measure Sleeping, but Republicans
Try to Awake It.

Special Dispatch to THE SUN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The horrid head of politics, supposed to be adjourned, has thrust itself up again. This time its appearance has to do with revenue and rum. Republicans believe they have found out their wily political opponents in time to head them off. According to the minority members of the Senate and House, the reduction of the whiskey tax in the Kitchin revenue bill to $6 a gallon instead of $8, done a few days ago by the Senate Finance Committee and the burying of war time prohibition measures, are both moves by the Democrats to aid themselves in the coming elections.

It is certain that the House will insist on putting the whiskey tax back to $8 a gallon and the Finance Committee Democrats are well aware of this. However, as the bill will not be brought to the Senate and in conference until election is safely past, the improvement in being fostered in States like Kentucky and Pennsylvania that the Democratic party, the friends of the people and of the distillers as well, was instrumental in cutting down this terrible tax.

The tomblike silence of the conference on the food production stimulation bill, which has the war time prohibition measure tacked on as a rider, is due to political considerations too, the Republicans declare. The only trouble with this measure is a disagreement over a provision about renting in Washington, and it is this alone which is holding the bill in conference.

This measure is another slated to be left quietly and completely alone until after the election is over. Until after the American public exercises its great privilege of the ballot on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November it is not even going to be referred to, let alone acted upon, if the Democrats can have their way about it.

The main objection of the party in power, it is believed, is the State of Kentucky, where things are not going as well as could be wished by the Democrats. Kentucky and one or two States are very deeply concerned in the manufacture of whiskey, and the two moves related above were aimed at conciliating the voters there and trying to wean them from their daily more pronounced Republican leanings. The main question now with both parties is whether the Democrats will be able to get away with it.

U-BOAT CHASES SHIP NEAR U. S.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 12.—A big British freight steamship which arrived here this afternoon, reported having been chased early to-day by a U-boat not far from this port.

The captain of the freighter sighted the submarine on the surface at a distance from his ship and immediately ordered full speed ahead, maintaining eighteen knots for more than an hour before the German gave up the pursuit. Owing to the distance between the vessels, he said, no shots were fired.

Russian Premier Coming Here.

By the Associated Press.
TOKYO, Oct. 12.—(Delayed.)—Prince Georges Lvoff, the first Premier of the Russian Provisional Government, who arrived in Japan on Friday, will remain here a week before leaving for America. His purpose in visiting that country is to explain the actual situation in Russia to Americans, who are inclined to attach undue importance to Bolshevik influence.

1,024,615,280 FARES PAID.

Subway and "L" Carried 30,000,000 More Than Year Before.

According to reports of the Public Service Commission the New York subway and elevated lines carried a total of 1,024,615,280 passengers for the year ending with June, 1918. This is an increase of about 30,000,000 over the preceding year.

The old subway of the Interborough showed a decrease of 11,225,476 passengers, while the new subway showed an increase of 15,002,257, a net increase of 4,442,674 for the year. The net increase of 8,230,174 passengers on the elevated lines operated by the Interborough was below the normal.

The lines operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company showed an increase of 6,734,300 passengers, while the elevated lines operated by this company showed an increase of 24,056,772.

Service Flag for Newsboys' Home.

A service flag with the figures "2687" in blue and ten gold stars for those who have given their lives for their country in the war, was raised at the Brace Memorial Newsboys' Home yesterday. There were eight silver stars, representing members of the Brace Memorial Alumni who have been wounded abroad. William L. Butcher, superintendent, presided at the exercises.

Banks and Church
Bells

If I could I would reach up this morning to a great bell up over the world. I would ring it out over the hills, over the cities, over the cunning little church bells in their cunning little towers, and over the people—all those funny little flocks of people trooping through the streets to find a God.

I would have the great bell up over the world tell all the church bells what to sing.

Then all the church bells in all the belfries would take it up and sing it over, sing it over to the people, to all the people in the streets tagging the church bells to find their God.

All the church bells this morning would be asking people questions from their towers and answering questions.

"Where is your God, do you think?" to each man the bells will say.

"Do you think your God is here with us?" the bells will sing out at him.

"Perhaps He is."

"He meets some people here, but are you really quite sure you could expect to find God waiting around the church for YOU?"

"Perhaps you should have tried the door of your bank on the way."

"Have you bought three times as many Liberty Bonds as you thought you would yet? Have you faced it and made up your mind to it?"

"If not, and if you are coming in the door of this church it is the thing you should kneel down and attend to at once."

"Don't think of trying our hymns or our prayers here this morning or looking for God here."

"He's only here for people by appointment."

"Do you think you can find God here when you have passed Him by in the bank?"

I wish for one there was some way—especially on these war Sunday mornings—of making our church bells speak more distinctly to the people in the streets. They sound sometimes to me a little uproarious and indiscriminating and thoughtless, inviting everybody in so, right and left, without making them stop to think more when they go in the door.

If I had my way the banks would all be open on Sunday morning while people were going to church. Then I would have the banks opened again when people were coming out.
